

Fresher Resume Checklist

A practical checklist for making your resume easier to shortlist. Not fancy. Useful.

Before you send it

- Keep it to one page unless you have genuinely strong experience.
- Put target role, skills, projects, education, and contact details where a recruiter can scan them in seconds.
- Remove objective paragraphs that say nothing specific.
- Use a clean PDF filename: Name_Role_Resume.pdf.

Project section

- Each project should answer: what you built, what tools you used, and what result it produced.
- Add GitHub, live link, demo video, or screenshots when possible.
- Replace vague words like worked on, learned, helped with specific actions.

Skills section

- Group skills by type: languages, frameworks, tools, databases.
- Do not list skills you cannot answer two basic questions about.
- Match the job description honestly. Do not keyword-stuff like a desperate robot.

Final scan

- Check spelling, alignment, dates, phone number, and email.
- Open the PDF on mobile once. Recruiters do that too.
- Ask: if I had 10 seconds, would I know what this person can do?

Use this as a starting point. Customize answers and resumes for the exact role. If it sounds copied, it probably is.
